

Second time junior middleweight NZ champion

A young Marton boxer, 16 year old, Onyx Lye, has defended his NZ junior middleweight class 75kg boxing title after competing at the NZ Boxing Championships at Hornby Christchurch a couple of weeks ago and he has been named in the NZ squad. Onyx attends Rangitikei College, works part time on a dairy farm and is a top junior, up and coming NZ boxer. On top of school and work commitments, he trains three times a day - Monday to Friday - before and after school and again in the evening.

He arrived home from Christchurch this week, after successfully competing at the national championships, where he won the junior 75kg NZ title for the second year running and was named on the NZ development squad after defeating the Australian Under 19, 81kg national champion around a month ago.

He has had an exciting couple of years at the top level of boxing. A list of his achievements so far in 2018 includes: Auckland champion, central North Island champion, Manawatu champion, Golden Gloves champion, NZ national champion, ANZAC Super Series champion.

His previous achievements include Queensland Golden Gloves champion 2016, Tongan national champion 2017, Auckland champion 2016/2017, NZ national champion 2017, Manawatu champion 2017, Western Australian champion 2017, Boxing Explosion champion 2017, ANZAC Super Series champion 2017 x2.

His proud father Lewis Lye says, "Now, he's quietly chipping away in the gym, getting ready to hopefully represent NZ at the next youth world championships in 2019."

A vegetable noodle range produced by a Marton company has taken out the Massey University Supreme Award at this year's prestigious New Zealand Food Awards.

From the Rangitikei town of Marton, Whole Mix Co Limited has taken out the Massey University Supreme Award with its vegetable noodle range. The company is one of the Speir Foods labels and is now eligible to use the NZ Food Awards Quality Mark, domestically and internationally.

The 11 category winners and Supreme Award winner were announced at a gala dinner event at Auckland's SkyCity Convention Centre last week, in front of 400 guests. The awards, which have been running since 1987, celebrate creative innovation from New Zealand's food and beverage manufacturers. More than 220 products were entered this year, with 67 products from 54 companies being named finalists.

The Whole Mix Co Limited also won the Massey University Health and Wellbeing Award and the James & Wells Business Innovation Award for its noodle range which includes zucchini, butternut, medley (beetroot, carrot, zucchini) and kumara. Judges said the products are a tasty and nutritious alternative to pasta, can be used in stir-fry and salad or eaten straight from the package and their growing popularity reflects some of the changing tastes of NZ consumers.

Ross Kane, managing director of Speirs Foods, parent company of The Whole Mix Co Limited, says winning the awards is recognition of the way the company has evolved and improved over the past 18 months.

"We got the team reinvigorated, got the right culture within the business and set a goal of being more innovative and producing what people really wanted in the market place and I think it's just a celebration of that journey over the past 12 to 18 months," Mr Kane says.

The judges say the vegetable noodle range rides the wave of market demand for easy to serve, fresh vegetables, with a twist.

"These prepacked, spiralsised, microwaveable vegetable noodles, prepared from locally-grown vegetables, are delicious, nutritious and fill a much-needed gap in the fresh vegetable market. Consumers are crying out for fresh products they can cook or prepare quickly and easily.

The judges especially loved that the vege noodles were so versatile and could be served up raw to spice up a salad or microwaved to offer additional nutritional vegetable options for busy Kiwis.

"This product demonstrates innovation, creativity and tasty NZ grown produce. Well done to the team at The Whole Mix Co Limited," they said.

Head of James & Wells' food & beverage innovation team, Carrick Robinson says, "The Whole Mix Co Limited has listened to its consumers and has followed healthy eating and convenience trends to considerably grow the category. They have innovatively adapted the way every department operates, following the launch of the new consumer brand and also understand the value of protecting it."

Other companies recognised include Alliance Group Ltd with two awards – the Frozen award and the NZ Food Safety primary sector products award; Clevedon Buffalo Co won the Cuisine Artisan Award, 8 Wired Brewing Co won the Shout alcoholic beverage award and NoShortcuts Ltd won the Countdown grocery foods award.

Massey University vice-chancellor Professor Jan Thomas says, "The quality of entries and increased interest in the awards reflects a remarkable growth in the sector's innovation and also the confidence of NZ companies to compete in global and domestic markets," Professor Thomas says.

"The demand for food with proven health and nutritional benefits – and, of course, great flavours – will continue to provide economic benefit to Aotearoa NZ."

FORTY YEARS OF HERITAGE DISPLAYED
RIGHT ON OUR DOORSTEP

Earlier this month I was privileged to attend the 40th anniversary celebrations of the National Army Museum in Waiouru with my colleague Mark Mitchell, who is National's Defence spokesperson. The Museum was designed by Sir Miles Warren to blend into the barren landscape, in a location where it was most relevant. It's now forty years since a major fund-raising effort and a team of army engineers and volunteer labourers provided New Zealand with its National Army Museum. The museum was opened by Prime Minister Rob Muldoon and Governor-General Keith Holyoake in October 1978.

Forty years on and the building still looks much the same, though it now receives around 100,000 visitors a year and the exhibits within have evolved with the times to include personal stories, interactive displays and guided tours as well as traditional static presentations. According to current Acting Director Windsor Jones, the focus is on telling the stories of ordinary New Zealanders doing extraordinary things in really tough circumstances.

In December 2007, when the country learned of the theft of ninety-six medals from the National Army Museum, many New Zealanders felt a real sense of personal loss. The spiritual home of the New Zealand Army was then in its thirtieth year of operation and the heist affected the staff and people throughout the country deeply. This episode in the Museum's history served to highlight to the nation what the National Army Museum really stood for.

Fast forward a decade or so and I believe there is definitely a heightened awareness of military history amongst New Zealanders young and old. Part of this is probably attributable to a number of centenary commemorations of famous World War One battles over recent years, like Gallipoli and the Battle of the Somme.

Our National Army Museum is definitely not a gloomy mausoleum. While it is respectful of the Kiwi sacrifice and service we are so proud of, it is at the same time modern and progressive and there's usually a school bus in the parking area. In fact, the museum has put a huge focus on children and young people with its Kids' Zone and various school programmes run by two specialist educators. The Kippenberger Library at the Museum is kept busy with family history enquiries, as people take the time to wonder about their parents or grandparents involvement in active duty.

We are incredibly fortunate to have a well-respected tourist destination, complete with café and visitor i-Site right on our doorstep, with big plans for expansion. Yet many people in the central and lower North Island have never paid a visit to the National Army Museum. Maybe, this is the summer to gather up your family and visitors and take in some of New Zealand's heritage. You'll be glad you did.

Rag Poets on Marton stage

The Wellington band, Rag Poets (pictured) will be in concert at Marton Players Theatre next month, on Saturday November 10 at 7.30pm.

Individual band members have played in bands like The Fourmyula, Kal-Q-Lated Risk, Rockinghorse and The Warratahs. Band members are Vic Singe, Dave Murphy, Clinton Brown, Carl Evensen and Alan Norman. Rag Poets' style of music sits in the country/rock genre, with soaring notes and rich vocal harmonies, guitar/mandolin picking, squeeze-boxing, drums and bass. They take old songs and create something new from them and they add a handful of original songs. They attract warm and lively audiences whenever they perform at their regular gigs in cafes and bars in Wellington.

Tickets $20 each from Ray White in Broadway, 06 327 7343 or door sales.

Rugby players get together

About 60 rugby players, young and old, past and present, who gathered at the Marton Rugby clubrooms on Friday October 12, included the competition winning team of 1968. The gathering attracted many former Rangitikei and Wanganui rep players and is set to become an annual event. It was the first engagement of a weekend reunion for the 1968 Marton Old Boys team, who also gathered again on the Saturday. Former Wanganui Rugby Union chairs, Arch Roebuck and Eric Weir also attended. The oldest former players at the event were Duncan Hart aged 96 and Eddie Zander 92. Former Wanganui player Bob Burrell welcomed everyone and spoke about the value of such an event for all ages of rugby player. Marton Rugby president Mark Jones also welcomed them and encouraged former players to join the club supporters' group. Bob Burrell read a very entertaining rugby poem full of home truths (as old rugby bodies age). Organisers, David Calkin and Bob Burrell were thrilled with the turnout that included, among others, former Wanganui rep players Ray Stafford and Bill Parkes – father of Welsh rep player Hadley Parkes.

RURAL WOMEN NZ BUSINESS AWARDS 2018

Rural Women NZ has announced the category winners and finalists for this year's NZI Rural Women NZ Business Awards held recently. "The awards are an opportunity to showcase the innovation and entrepreneurial excellence of women who own small rural businesses, while also supporting their local communities," says RWNZ national president, Fiona Gower. "Judges continue to be impressed by the high calibre of entrants, who prove that there is breadth and diversity of enterprise in rural communities." The award winners for each category are as follows:

CLUB SCENE

Marton Lions community projects

Situated on council land, running beside Marton School, alongside Tutaenui Stream and emerging behind Marton Memorial Hall, is a well used walkway, first established by Forest and Bird and more lately, managed by the Lions International Club of Marton. It was established with plantings of both native and exotic shrubs and trees, in various stages and is an ongoing project. Several members of the public assist with planting and weeding and now, a group of community minded students from Rangitikei College has joined the effort. They have several very worthwhile ideas for upgrading the facilities, with a particular emphasis on making it more user friendly for mobility scooters. Over time, the planted area will increase to the full length of the walkway. If you have any comments, or suggestions, you can contact either Steve Carkeek, 327 7745, or David Hammond: 327 4119. Following a request from a member of the public, Marton Lions have set up a seat in front of the Stewart Street Surgery (pictured) so that patients have somewhere to sit, while waiting for a taxi. The seat has a bit of history attached, though not quite local. The original seat was from one of the old picture theatres in Taihape and is possibly unique in its present form. It should give many years of service to the community.

Marton Friendship Club

Hall open 12.30pm, Morris St, Marton. Main programme 2pm. Last week was quiz day, organised by John Scarbrough. A good attendance, as quiz days are proving popular and at times, quite noisy. Nobody likes being beaten. Questions are general knowledge, countries and politics. It can be quite interesting, as viewpoints are often very different. However, it was a good afternoon. Raffles won by visitor Eric, Betty Gordon, Deana Scarbrough, Melva Brinkman and Vic Byatt. Entertainer this Friday will be Robyn Curtis from Koputaroa (with a keyboard) performing country music. Another good musician. Remember - come early and bring your lunch. Tea and coffee available. Visitors always welcome. See you all Friday.

Marton Music Society

Well-known songs from light opera will feature in this Sunday's Marton Music Society concert at the Friendship Hall in Morris St. Performing from 2pm will be the soprano Caitlin Comer (pictured) who last year won the Nita Oldham Trophy in Wanganui. She will be singing the My Fair Lady classic 'I Could Have Danced All Night', Gilbert and Sullivan's 'Poor Wandering One' from The Pirates of Penzance, as well as 'Wishing You Were Somehow Here Again' from the Phantom of the Opera. David Tipi, who has recently come from Auckland to live in Marton, and teaches at Nga Tawa, will be singing 'Home' by Micheal Buble. He is an experienced singer and pianist and has been a member of several award-winning choirs. Instrumentals will also feature in the programme, with Angela Wu presenting a short recital of French flute music. She's also a violinist and will perform violin works by Mozart, as well as 'Playera' by the famous violinist and composer Pablo Sarasate. Rebecca Nesdale will perform short piano works by Bach and Beethoven. Admission is by donation; afternoon tea will follow and all are welcome.

about homes

Build with resale in mind

Maximise efficiency in your new home

No matter how much you love the house you are building, it's unlikely that it will be the last home you will ever own. Knowing that, you should be mindful of its potential re-sale value.

Don't add so many upgrades that you overprice your home for the neighbourhood and ask yourself if the features you're considering installing are likely to appeal to others.

Research has shown that in a competitive market, 'green' homes sell, not only faster but for more money. Demand for healthier, sustainable homes is up 10-fold since 2015, according to a recent NZ report.

Make sure you do your research to maximize energy-efficiency in the design of your new home. Your architect and builder can ensure your windows face the sun, therefore heating your home. You'll want to make sure bathrooms, laundries and garages are on the side of your home to minimize heat loss. Do research on choosing insulation and ventilation systems, as well as energy efficient appliances, taps and toilets.

It appears that people want assurance they are buying and building healthier homes that attain high standards of sustainability and efficiency.

Houses that help homeowners save money, result in better health and well-being and help reduce climate impacts, are becoming more in demand.

An overwhelming 9 out of 10 NZers rate good sun and insulation as very important when choosing a new home – far outweighing other factors. Nationally, 77% said making their home more energy efficient was a priority. Kiwis considering selling their homes believe it is worth upgrading, with 88% thinking that energy efficient features have the potential to attract a premium price. Efficient features like LED lighting and 'green' building, makes properties more valuable through lowered maintenance and energy costs. The return on investment from 'green' building is rapid, with retrofit projects generally expected to pay for themselves in just seven years.

More people are opting for energy efficient improvements over cosmetic changes. Energy-efficiency pays off.

HUNTERVILLE HUNTAWAY FESTIVAL

Don't miss the action

Rangitikei's iconic Hunterville event – The Huntaway Festival, features the 21st annual Shepherds' Shemozzle this year - a gruelling race for shepherds and their huntaway dogs. The race requires skill, courage, stamina, mental ability and a good dog.

The Hunterville Huntaway Festival has grown since the first Shepherd's Shemozzle was run in 1998. The idea was thought up at the local pub by some local folk - Tony Theed, Richard Horrocks and Thomas Powell.

They suggested a run like the Cardrona Shepherds Run in South Island but it was quickly pointed out Hunterville doesn't have a mountain. But Hunterville does have a steep hill, so the event evolved from there with youth and kids shemozzles.

It has developed into a family day, filled with lots of entertainment and fun.

Read details about this weekend's event in the following centre spread.

HUNTERVILLE HUNTAWAY FESTIVAL

WANGANUI COLLEGIATE SCHOOL

Proud sponsor of the 2018 Children's Shemozzle Race

Head to Hunterville

The Huntaway Festival is on this Saturday October 27 in the main street of Hunterville.

With its iconic Shemozzle race, it is the only event of its kind in the North Island and it's trademarked, so no one else is permitted to use the name or style, except the Hunterville Huntaway Festival.

The event attracts thousands of visitors every year for a family day, filled with lots of entertainment and lots of stalls and other activities to see. For young children, there are various attractions, such as face painting and a magic show as well as a bouncy castle.

The exciting and awe-inspiring Shepherds' Shemozzle race is the event of the day but there are two other races for younger competitors that involve hundreds of keen runners.

The Children's Shemozzle for ages 9 – 13 years old, has capacity for 200 competitors and entries fill up in advance every year. This year, competitors must register between 10.30am and 12 noon on the day as well.

Runners can compete for their school, as well as in a team for the Interschool Challenge. Prizes are for first, second and third over the line.

The Teen's Shemozzle, designed for ages 13 – 18, was held for the first time in 2013. It's as gruelling as the Shepherds' race but no dog is required. There are spaces available for 200 competitors, but runners are advised be in quick to secure a place in this race! Listed runners must also register on the day, between 10.30am and 12 noon.

Prizes are for first, second and third over the line. Runners can team up with school mates to form an Interschool team or enter their Teen Ag Club.

You need courage, stamina and the mental ability to do any of the Shemozzle races and a good dog for the big race.

The Shepherd's Shemozzle is the main race of the day, where competitors do the full course with their Huntaway dog by their side and the first across the line with all the requirements of the race met, will win the prestigious title and the Sure n' Bejezuz trophy title for the year as well as valuable top prizes. All competitors to attend the race will receive a 'doggie bag' full of goodies and a Shemozzle t-shirt.

Later in the day, the annual Shearing Contractors Challenge is staged in the marquee. It's a dynamic and not to be missed, speed shearing event.

There will be time to visit the fantastic shops in Hunterville, perfect for a spot of Christmas shopping as well as food stalls, craft stalls and, to finish the day off, there is a marquee, with a bar and a band to entertain in the evening.

Biggest bark up attempt this weekend

A huntaway dog bark up is usually held at the Shemozzle but this year the Hunterville Huntaway Festival will feature an attempt to create the biggest dog bark up on record – starting at 2.55pm.

It's in support of the 'Will to Live - Speak Up Tour 2019' - a New Zealand tour, helping isolated young rural males who make up our highest rates of suicide, 'Speak Up' through their dogs.

The loss of a loved one to suicide became the inspiration behind a mental health awareness campaign aimed at young men in the rural sector. The 'Will to Live' campaign is the brainchild of 20-year-old Lincoln University student Elle Perriam. Her 21-year-old boyfriend Will, a shepherd in North Otago, committed suicide last year. As part of the campaign, the Speak Up tour will visit ten towns and rural centres, holding evenings with guest experts and those who have experienced depression. The mascot of the campaign is Will's black huntaway dog, Jess.

There will be a 'bark up' at the Hunterville Huntaway Festival on Saturday which will see over 150 huntaway dogs encouraged to bark at once. The 'bark up' is being seen a metaphor for the message about speaking up when you need help.

Livestock tagging company Allflex is pledging its full support to the tour and ensuring the message is spread far and wide. Ms Perriam has launched a fundraising campaign online through pledgeme.co.nz to help with the tour.

Public Notices

Council is committed to developing its waste minimisation initiatives. As part of this, we are asking residents in our urban residential areas whether they want Council to introduce a kerbside recycling service; a kerbside rubbish and recycling service; or leave things as they are now (i.e. no Council operated service).

Over the next few weeks, all urban residential properties will receive a postcard which gives you three options to choose from - recycling only; rubbish and recycling; or the status quo. Please fill this in and return it to us by 2 November 2018 and if you provide your details, you go in the draw to win $200 worth of grocery vouchers.

More information can be found on Council's website www.rangitikei.govt.nz/rubbish-recycling

Temporary Liquor Control Area - Huntville Township

As per Section 7 of the Rangitikei District Council Liquor Control in a Public Place Bylaw 2010, the Liquor Control area in Huntville has been temporarily extended to include all of Huntville within the township boundary, apart from licensed premises. The Huntville township boundary is defined as all of the area contained within the following boundaries:

The intersection of Milne (SH1) and Main Streets
The intersection of Porewa (SH1) and Kotukutuku Roads
Ongo Road (50km/h - 100km/h signposts)
Rangatira Road (50km/h - 100km/h signposts)

And includes the Huntville Recreation Reserve and Queens Park

The period of this extension is between the hours of: 11.00 am, Saturday 27 October to 11.00 am, Sunday 28 October 2018.

Ross McNeil
 Chief Executive

On Sunday, was Denis Robertson, with a superb 45 points. Although a little shaky on the first 3 holes, Robertson then climbed into his work, to complete a superb round, which included 5 pars and a birdie on the last for good measure. JJ Walker was also in sublime form, with 42 points, despite not scoring on 2 holes. He made up for these, with birdies on the second and fourth. Hamish Rose had his moments, with 40 points, followed by John Fenemor and Danny Mickleson on 38. Coming in on 37 were Diane Mickleson, Gary Thomas, Barrie Randall and Duane Dick. Ken Cribb and Kevin O'Brien managed 36, with Nick McGuinn, Jim Fannin, Merv Tapp and Fran Robertson 1 further adrift. James Fannin managed a 2 on the 14th and George "Egyptian" O'Brien had his name called out for the right reasons, with a 2 on the 6th. On Labour Day, Denis Robertson backed up with another excellent exhibition - leading the field on a merry chase, with 44 points and being very consistent throughout, with 4 pars. Barrie Randall led the chasing pack on 40 - also being very consistent. James Fannin managed 40, which included a two on the 17th and 6 pars. Danny Mickleson scored 39, aided by a birdie on the 13th. JJ Walker and Fran Robertson both scored 38. Diane Mickleson and Chris George recorded 37 and Merv Tapp 36. Two's - Gary Thomas (6), James Fannin (17). This Sunday, the Glendinning Cup is up for grabs at Buckley, whilst the Eagles are visiting Taihape with a noon tee off.

MARTON SARACENS CRICKET

Marton Saracens has only been able to field one team in this season's Wanganui Cricket Association competitions, after a number of injuries and defections forced the premier 1 side to withdraw. Matt Burke Engineering Marton Saracens is playing in the premier 2 grade and started the season with a win on Saturday, being defaulted to by Wanganui Tech. The team's first home game will be at Centennial Park, 12.30 pm this Saturday, against Wanganui Wicket Warriors. Levi Woolston, one of Saracens' youngest players, continues to perform well on the Palmerston North Boys' High 1st eleven tour of Australia and South Africa, while Saracens' oldest player, Allan Pond (pictured), has once again been selected to play for the NZ Over 60 team, in the up-coming Australian veterans state championship. This tournament will be held in Penrith, New South Wales, from 10 to 16 November.

KALEB NGATOA — A CHAMPION ON THE RISE

Rangitikei College's Kaleb Ngatoa is going places and fast! At only 17 years old, the young Marton local has risen through the ranks and has recently signed up for the 2018-19 Toyota 86 championship. At the age of 6 he asked his parents if he could try moto cross. They refused. A friend of the family offered the young boy a try on a go kart. On his first attempt, Kaleb cried; because at 70kpm he felt it was going too slow. Three years later, Kaleb won his first title in Wellington, the CIK trophy of New Zealand. In his words, it was a 'wicked' feeling. His main supporters have been his parents, Robbie and Tracey, as well as his sponsors Daytona, Capture Signs, JJ Walters, Robbie's Mechanical Services, ORG Racewear and NZ Praga Australia. It is a juggling act balancing the needs of school work and racing but his parents have always drummed into him the same message: "No education, no racing", so Kaleb makes the time. He has in the past received individual tutoring and is grateful to senior management at the College who have been flexible and understanding enough to allow Kaleb time to focus on his racing. F1 racer Brendan Hartley is a person that he admires, particularly the way he handles himself. Kaleb has spoken with both Brendan's brother and father who has told him to keep going. It takes a lot of fitness, both physical and mental, to become a champion racer and to endure a race that runs for several hours. Kaleb runs every morning and you will find him in the gym in the afternoons. He relaxes by playing sport, particularly basketball and hanging out with his mates. His future goals include endurance racing like LMP1 and Formula 1. It is an exciting time for Kaleb, the world is his oyster and he is going for it!
